

EASAS European Doctoral Workshop
February 11–13, 2025
Campus Condorcet, Aubervilliers-Paris (France)

Call for applications

On behalf of the European Association of South Asian Studies (EASAS), the newly established Centre for South Asian and Himalayan Studies (CESAH) will host the next European doctoral workshop in South Asian Studies. This event will take place from February, 11–13 on Campus Condorcet (Paris-Aubervilliers).

The EASAS doctoral workshop is open to PhD students from all disciplines within the social sciences, who are engaged in South Asian Studies. This workshop provides participants with a unique opportunity to meet leading scholars and fellow PhD students from across Europe in a stimulating academic environment.

Participants are expected to share a draft—such as an excerpt from their thesis, a journal article, a book chapter, or any work in progress (4,000 to 6,000 words maximum)—as long as it relates to their core PhD research. During the workshop, each paper will be introduced by another participant and subsequently discussed by a senior scholar.

Venue: CESAH – UMR 8077, EHESS/Campus Condorcet, 2 Cours des Humanités 93322 Aubervilliers, France

Application process: To apply, PhD students must send a document that includes their institutional affiliation, the title of their thesis and the name of their supervisor, the title of their paper, and a 250-word abstract. Applications should be e-mailed to remy.delage@ehess.fr and fabien.provost@ehess.fr by November 29, 2024.

Organizers will notify all applicants by December 16. Successful applicants are expected to become members of the EASAS network.

What is EASAS?

The European Association for South Asian Studies (EASAS) is a charitable organization that supports interdisciplinary research and teaching in South Asian Studies across any historical period. EASAS organizes workshops and conferences, supports early-career scholars, and provides a European platform for intensive academic exchange on South Asia.

Inaugurated in 2019, Campus Condorcet is a state-of-the-art research and training facility dedicated to the human and social sciences, offering all the necessary amenities to host a PhD workshop in South Asian Studies (including research buildings, a scientific incubator, a research library, residences, etc.).

What is CESA?

The Centre for South Asian and Himalayan Studies (UMR 8077) is the leading French social science research unit specialized in the Indian subcontinent and the Himalayas, and ranks among the largest in Europe. Located within the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales (EHESS: School of Advanced Studies in the Social Sciences) on Campus Condorcet (Aubervilliers), CESAH operates as a joint research unit under the dual supervision of EHESS and the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS: National Centre for Scientific Research). It comprises around thirty permanent members, a similar number of PhD students, and a substantial support staff.
